Lancaster Farmland Trust is pleased to announce our 2021 Board of Trustees officers and introduce two new members to our Board.

Elected by their fellow Board members in November, LFT welcomes an entirely new slate of officers for the 2021 calendar year: G. Donald Hess, Chair; Jeff Kirk, Vice-Chair; Kenneth S. Lewis, Treasurer; Emily Bell, Secretary.

In addition to new officers, we welcome two new faces to our Board: Kendra Gottshall of Sageworth and Lisa Horn of Kitchen Kettle Village. Both new Board members are appointed to one, three-year term.

Kendra is a Senior Financial Strategist with Sageworth and a CPA, and a native of Lancaster County. She is a graduate of Hempfield High School and Messiah University. Kendra lives in Elizabethtown with her husband, Kurt, and their two boys. Lisa Horn is the Director of Fun at Kitchen Kettle Village. She is a graduate of Lampeter-Strasburg High School and Penn State University. Lisa has two children and resides in Strasburg with her husband, Gerry, and their golden retriever, Apollo.

"I am excited to welcome Kendra and Lisa as new Board members – these two bring a wealth of experience and expertise in their fields and will be tremendous assets to LFT. I look forward to working alongside our slate of officers, and the entire Board, to advance LFT's mission of protecting and stewarding Lancaster County's farmland," said Jeff Swinehart, Chief Operating Officer of Lancaster Farmland Trust.

Lancaster Farmland Trust's volunteer Board of Trustees is the organization's governing entity and establishes LFT's strategic direction to fulfill its vision for Lancaster County.
